

Dr Ioannis Iliopoulos, Associate Professor, Department of Geology, University of Patras, Greece, is the Director of the Museum of Science and Technology in the University of Patras. He conducted his PhD Thesis in the field of Metamorphic Petrology. He was appointed as a Researcher in the Dipartimento di Chimica e Fisica della Terra (CFTA), University of Palermo, Italy, under the auspices of the interdisciplinary European Geo-archaeological Research Project "GEOPRO". He systematically applies analytical techniques for the study of archaeomaterials and earth raw materials from the wider Mediterranean area (Italy, Spain, Greece) and Latin America (Ecuador, Peru). He has received the Picker Interdisciplinary Science Institute research award (Colgate University, USA). His archaeometric research is published in peer review journals and international congresses. He is a member of the Equip de Recerca Arqueològica y Arqueomètrica, University of Barcelona (ERAAUB), Spain and a scientific consultant of the Academy of Institutions and Cultures, Greece.